Dear Valued SeniorScript Client:

Have you read that new journal article about how to better manage risk of stroke in older adults?

With today's technology, there are many ways to enhance your knowledge base and stay current in the medical literature, but how do you pull it all together?

Let us help!

SeniorScript is pleased to announce our new abstracting service. What is an "abstracting service"? This is a unique service that scours the industry literature, medical journals, newsfeeds, and professional organization updates. The most pertinent abstracts are collected and organized into a concise document delivered right to you!

The SeniorScript Clinical Literature Update (CLU) is distributed monthly and anyone from your organization, including your physicians, can sign up to receive it.

So what's the catch? Nothing! SeniorScript feels that by providing you with clinical updates, you'll be better able to serve your patients. We also understand how important outreach initiatives are, especially with community physicians so feel free to share it.

Want to review these updates, but don't want them emailed? No problem...The issues are archived on the SeniorScript Web site for retrieval at anytime. Just log into the "client exclusive" section of www.seniorscript.com and select the newsletter link.

To sign up for this service, please send an email to info@seniorscript.com requesting the SeniorScript CLU. Feel free to sign up your local physicians by including the additional email addresses with your request.

Should you have any questions about the service, please use email address above and a member of the SeniorScript Clinical Team will contact you.

Kindest Regards,

The SeniorScript Clinical Team
